the management of the provinces have received the visitation calmly, and realise what measures of defence are possible and what are not. But the Government, we think, will be equally mistaken if it supposes that all England will be satisfied to like helpless under the constant threat of bembardment. The extension of the enemy's attacks from London to the provinces is in process of creating a demand for direct reprisals which the Government will be unable to ignore. There are, we believe, very few people who have so far forgotten that they belong to a race with a clean tradition of warfare as to favour own part, we favour them, it is for no such reason. It is because we believe that in a pelicy of reprisals lies the best hope—indeed, the only heps—of checking our genevals from the province is in processor. An amusing case was heard at Strokes town Betty Sessions yeaterday, when District Inspector Beirne charged Mrs. Winifred Began, Church street, with an alleged breach of the Licensing Act. It was stated for the defendant that John McCormack, who was found in the bar at 1 o'clock in the morning, had come for Epsom salts and ginger for a sick. cow. The police suggested that McCormack was one of a party who came to Strokestown to secure drink and bring it away on a cart. Mr. Beirne said it would would be ridiculous to think McCormack was pound of salts and some ginger. The case was dismussed against the publican, and McCormack was fined 5s.

MYSTERY OF A SHIP'S BOAT. DEAD SAILOR BROUGHT INTO BRAY.

Mr. James Murray J.P., Coroner for East Wicklow, held an inquest yesterday on the body.

District Inspector Moloney, R.I.C., explained that the only information they had about the matter was from the newspaper reports of the collision between the Philadelphia and the Ren Lee. The boat picked up by the Telephone was one of two—either a boat which contained seven men of two—lither a boat which contained seven men of the Philadelphia's crew asnt to help the Ben Lee, and which had been lost sight of, or was one of the life-boats washed off the Philadelphia's deck at the time of the collision. Of the boat's crew that had gone to assist the Ben Lee aix men had since been picked up, and three were landed at Milford-Haven and three awarded the man's name.

Captain McKendry, ss. Telephone, gave evidence as to sighting the Philadelphia's life-boat. He bore down on it, and found that it contained the body of a sailor. He was unable to get the boat on board, and towed it into Bray Harbour.

Patrick Kilbride, of Bray, seaman on board as Telephone, stated that when they were taking the body out of the boat in Bray Harbour they found that it was lashed with a rope to the seat.

Dr. Brew stated that there was a bruise on the man's head, but that death, in his opinion, was caused by drowning.

The jury returned a verdict in secondance with the medical evidence.

On inquiry at Bray last night it was learned that an officer of the American liner will
